HORRIFIC MASSACRE

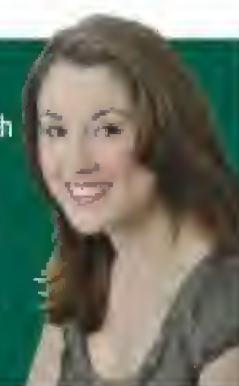

The nation's largest mass shooting has left at least 59 people dead and more than 500 wounded in Las Vegas. 2

MORGAN ROUSSEAU, MANAGING EDITOR
Yesterday the nation awoke to news of yet another deadly mass shooting after a gunman opened fire on a crowd of 22,000, killing 59 and wounding hundreds of others. In a rare moment of sensitivity, our president called for unity and asked for prayers. His message was comforting, but with more than 1,500 mass shootings since Sandy Hook, America must do more than pray. Follow along with Metro as the U.S. moves forward from this horrible attack by visiting metro.us.

Two hours of horror and disbelief as gunman opens fire in Las Vegas

The bloodshed took a toll on local hospital emergency rooms.

When the shooting began, some refused to believe a massacre was underway.

Country music singer Jason Aldean was in the middle of a guitar solo at an outdoor concert on the Las Vegas Strip on Sunday night and the sold-out crowd was enjoying the moment, unaware of the horror about to unfold.

"It's not real gunshots," one man yelled as panicked concertgoers ducked for cover. "It's the fireworks, fireworks! Guys, stop, stop."

The time was 10:07 p.m., the start of nearly two hours of terror before police would confirm that the gunman was down.

Police would eventually reveal that 64-year-old Stephen Paddock, armed with at least 10 rifles, fired into the crowd of 22,000 people from his 32nd floor room at the Mandalay Bay Resort and Casino. At least 59 people were killed and 527 wounded in the deadliest mass shooting in modern U.S. history.

Disbelief quickly gave way to reality as volley after volley of rapid gunfire rained down on the Route 91 Festival.

"We got shots fired!" a Las Vegas police officer radioed in at 10:08 p.m. "It sounded like an automatic firearm."

The moments were recorded by many social media users. Reuters pieced together events based on verified video, police and other official statements, and reporters on the scene from the Las Vegas Review-Journal.

Out on the streets, taxi drivers received word of the danger within minutes when an advisory of police activity came across the blue screens on their taxi meters.

"Drivers avoid LV Blvd and Tropicana. Active shooting from Mandalay Bay. Possible 3 shooters," the alert said at 10:25 p.m.

Minutes later, police ordered people to take cover inside the Mandalay Bay. "Even cabbies must exit their vehicles and go into hotel," LV Cabbie Chronicles tweeted at 10:28 p.m.

Citizens turned their private vehicles into ambulances, and others became on-the-spot medics, using metal crowd-control stanchions as stretchers.

"We have a head shot. We have a head shot," one man yelled in a video of volunteer medics at work.

Lindsay Lee, a self-described Las Vegas tattoo model, turned her truck into an ambulance when a man at the scene asked her to take victims to the hospital.

Then came a moment that few volunteers could be prepared for.

"One died in the back of the truck and my fiancé had to carry him inside the hospital," Lee said on Instagram. "This was a nightmare. I've never ran for my life like I did tonight."

A full 90 minutes after the shooting started, police were still ordering people on the street to get down and take cover.

Rachel Crosby, a reporter for the Review-Journal, saw events unfold from University Medical Center, the only Level 1 trauma center in Nevada, where all the trauma beds were full.

"I have seen a handful of nurses jogging into front and back hospital entrances," Crosby tweeted. "I have seen a handful of citizens speed-walking away from trauma center. Color drained from faces."

The bloodshed took an obvious toll on hospital staff.

"More and more staff wearing scrubs keep filing in UMC entrances," Crosby said.

Police have yet to pinpoint when the deadly assault came to an end.

But finally, just short of two hours after the shooting began, came the first sign that the danger had passed.

"Confirming that one suspect is down," Las Vegas police tweeted at 11:58 p.m. "This is an active investigation. Again, please do not head down to the Strip at this time."

Couples Are Craving New Sex Cream

Find out why couples across the country are raving about a new invention called Sensusm

Meet the Doctor that's fixing sexual problems in whole new way. Specialist, Dr. James L. Yeager's new cream triples men's penile sensitivity while stimulating their partner like nothing we've seen before.

Clearwater, Florida — A new invention is proving we may have been going about erectile dysfunction (ED) all wrong. The new physician formulated cream triples sensitivity in a man's penis, resulting in astounding improvements in erection strength and firmness. And because it's applied directly, it stimulates a partner, too, making sex more enjoyable for everyone! The breakthrough comes after new research points to loss of penile sensitivity as the leading contributor to weak, feeble, and soft erections.

MAKES SEX "FEEL" GOOD AND GETS YOU AROUSED

Let's face it. The failure to achieve a firm erection is devastating! It's one of the leading causes of relationship issues. And avoiding sex can often lead to a failed marriage. It is a horrible problem.

But what goes undiscussed and often undiagnosed is the loss of "feeling" and sensation in their penis as men age. And this loss of sensation, particularly in men over 40, is what makes it next to impossible to stimulate the penis, achieve and keep an erection, and even to climax.

If this is your problem (and studies reveal it's likely) you're not alone. This is called Reduced Penile Sensitivity (RPS). A condition that can cause loss of confidence, frustration, depression, and even anxiety. And

One doctor wasn't about to ignore the suffering of his patients... Meet Specialist, Dr. James L. Yeager. He is changing sexual medicine as we know it.

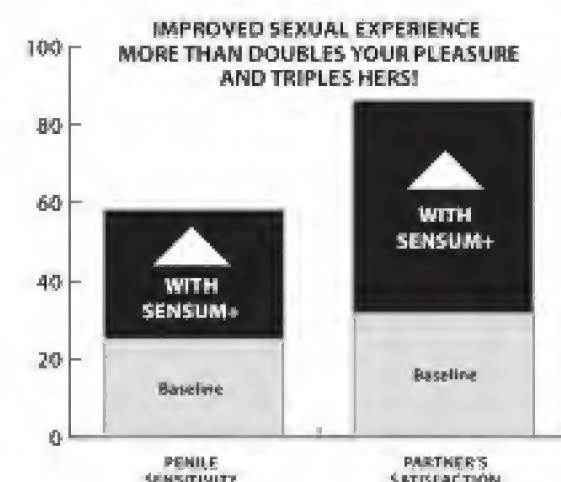

A BREAKTHROUGH DISCOVERY

Dr. Yeager created a new cream that makes penile sensitivity double, even triple. So even those that have little to no feeling at all in the penis suddenly experience mind-blowing sex again! After all, the formula for great sex is simple...

The more penile feeling, the more aroused you get, which provokes a firm and lasting erection and a full orgasm whenever you want. Think about it. No matter what drugs you take; If you don't have enough "feeling" in your penis, it's impossible to get an erection.

For years, men begged Dr. Yeager for a solution that would work to end lack of penile sensitivity. And now, his new cream is fixing erection problems a whole new way.

RESTORE SENSITIVITY, ENJOY SEX

Reduced Penile Sensitivity (RPS) is commonly associated with aging, diabetes, circumcision, certain surgeries and prescription drugs.

RPS is estimated to strike over 500 million men on a worldwide basis. Dr. Yeager states "It's not a man's fault. They did nothing wrong. They are not any less of a man. And now, men don't have to suffer any longer."

ED pills like Viagra, Cialis and natural pills work for many, but men with RPS often end up taking more than directed in the hope of increasing their penile sensitivity, and even then they don't work well enough.

That's why Dr. Yeager created SENSUM+®. A revolutionary new cream which promises to give you what no pill can... incredible, long-lasting sensation, even from the slightest touch.

HOW IT WORKS

SENSUM+® is a blend of essential oils and natural botanicals that can double, even triple your overall penile sensitivity. Men rub the cream on their penis twice daily for the first two weeks then once a day for eight additional weeks. There is a nice cinnamon smell and no residues.

The main ingredient, natural Cinnamaldehyde, activates the TRPA1 receptor (IC50 = 9.5µM). This increases the reaction of sensory neurons to stimulus such as warmth, cold and touch. This activation results in more sensitivity of the penis and a pleasurable sensation.

And the word is getting out. "Even men without E.D. problems are buying up more than we can produce", says Dr. Yeager.

CLINICALLY PROVEN

The clinically-proven nutrients in SENSUM+® help you get and keep a hard erection very easily, and let you climax when you want to.

For example, Joe Romas, 52, from Oakland, was frustrated he had little penile sensation during sex. This made it take too long to ejaculate. He had nearly given up until he discovered SENSUM+® cream.

Within one week after he started applying SENSUM+®, he reported, "I now have my old feeling and pleasure back. Sex is fun again and feels great. My wife and I are much happier now."

"I have full feeling and sensitivity back in my penis. This cream has been a Godsend for me," raves Otto Garangton of Seattle.

Sensusm +® has proven to be the perfect solution for men who:

- Are over age 40
- Have experienced a lack of sensitivity during intercourse
- Have difficulty achieving an erection due to "dullness" in the penis
- Can maintain an erection, but have difficulty achieving orgasm
- Have lost sensitivity and pleasure at the head of the penis
- Have been affected by diabetes, surgery or prescription medication

SENSITIVITY AND SATISFACTION DOUBLED, TRIPLED

SENSUM+® is clinically proven to end the most common male sexual problems fast and effectively. The result of two clinical studies on men, both circumcised and not, show SENSUM+® more than doubled penis sensitivity and more than tripled sexual satisfaction. And what's more is that their partners enjoyed sex so much more when they used the cream - nearly 300% increase in sexual satisfaction. Couples are raving.

Dr. Yeager's SENSUM+® triples sexual satisfaction for men by increasing "penile sensitivity"

PRIVACY GUARANTEED

SENSUM+® is patent-pending. The product is discretely shipped in a plain unmarked package so privacy and confidentiality is assured. It is for both circumcised and non-circumcised men. No side effects or medicine interactions have been reported.

Readers can now join thousands of other men who have ended their sexual issues and enjoy their sex life again like back when they were much younger. "It's almost like a miracle for men who want to improve their penis feeling and performance in bed" says Dr. Yeager.

The sooner you start using this cream, the sooner you can have more feeling in your penis again to get and keep a hard erection and enjoy sex more than ever.

SENSUM+® is NOT sold in stores. No prescription or doctor visit is required.

HOW TO GET SENSUM+® IN MASSACHUSETTS

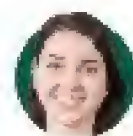

This is the first official public release of SENSUM+® in Massachusetts. In order to get the word out about SENSUM+®, the manufacturer, Innovus Pharmaceuticals is offering special introductory discounts to all Massachusetts residents.

Elizabeth Warren, Ed Markey call for action after Las Vegas shooting

Many Massachusetts leaders offered prayers, condolences and comments after Sunday night's deadly shooting.

Massachusetts officials are offering their condolences, prayers and comments on gun violence after a mass shooting in Las Vegas Sunday night in which at least 59 people were killed and more than 515 injured.

Boston Mayor Marty Walsh said that "Boston's thoughts and prayers" were with the victims and loved ones of the shooting. Gov. Charlie Baker commented that Massachusetts is "praying for the victims, families and first responders," and called the violence "senseless."

Massachusetts House Speaker Bob DeLeo said that he was "horrified and deeply saddened" by the incident and Senate President Stan Rosenberg said he was praying for all those impacted by the "horrific events."

Members of Congress representing Massachusetts also weighed in on the shooting, including Representatives Katherine Clark, Joe Kennedy III and more.

A few members of Congress went beyond the typical thoughts-and-prayers message, using the moment as a call to action to prevent further violence.

Rep. Seth Moulton said that he was praying that "Congress will have the courage to do more than stand in silence to commemorate them."

Moulton and Clark did not participate in Congress's moment of silence following the June 2016 Orlando shooting in which 49 people were killed and more than 50 injured — at the time, the worst shooting in U.S. history, until Sunday night.

Again, Moulton does not plan to participate in a Congressional moment of silence following Sunday night's violence.

Sen. Elizabeth Warren also sent off a series of tweets Monday morning, noting that she is "heart-sick" for the victims and their loved ones.

But thoughts and prayers "are NOT enough," Warren continued. She used her platform to call for a conversation about how to stop gun violence. "We need it NOW," she tweeted.

Sen. Ed Markey tweeted early Monday morning that he was praying for the victims and their families and thanked the "brave responders." He followed that up later Monday morning with a series of tweets on what he called the "epidemic" of gun violence.

Markey added specific steps he believes need to occur in our legislation to prevent the next mass shooting, like closing the gun show loophole, barring domestic abusers from being able to buy guns and repealing the Protection of Lawful Commerce in Arms Act. According to Markey, 92 percent of Americans support expanded background checks, as well.

We should be studying gun violence as a public health crisis, Markey continued, and banning assault weapons, which he said are, "weapons of war and should be used in combat, not in our communities."

"[Praying that] Congress will have the courage to do more than stand in silence to commemorate them."

Speidi welcomes their spawn

Spencer Pratt and Heidi Montag — better known as Speidi — have welcomed a son. Because there's not yet enough turmoil in this world.

The couple most famous for being the worst on "The Hills," a show that premiered in 2006, welcomed their first child on Sunday, Oct. 1.

His name is Gunner Stone, because Pratt has a storied history with loving crystals and rocks.

"Gunner was born at 3:06 p.m.," Speidi's rep told Us

Weekly. "He weighed in at 6 pounds, 12 ounces and measured 19 inches long. He has blond hair and blue eyes."

Both Montag and Pratt have typically responded to the birth of their first child, with Montag telling the weekly that they're "so blessed to have a beautiful baby boy." Pratt described the experience as "officially the most lit day of my life." Lit, huh?

Sounds about right.

Gwen & Blake are still happening

In case you've been wondering,

Blake Shelton and Gwen Stefani — a perfectly fine couple that nobody in particular asked for — are still vying for your attention, even though, if you're anything like me, you keep forgetting they are a thing.

Stefani joined Shelton onstage for an intimate concert in Oklahoma over the weekend. And in between songs that I'm sure are as twangy and annoying as they are undeniably catchy, Shelton made a shocking slash perfectly normal confession.

Joking about the start of their relationship, the country singer explained they had "started hanging out together and messing around." Which isn't scandalous so much as it is like, pretty standard.

But after a quick shocked look from Stefani, Shelton clarified. "You know, texting each other." Wow.

In conclusion, these two are still epically boring and totally normal and snooze worthy and fine.

Are Corinne & DeMario dating?

Good Lord: After the very uncomfortable, very messy, very messed up "Bachelor in Paradise" situation, it's starting to look like Corinne Olympios and DeMario Jackson are dating.

The maybe couple were spotted holding hands in Disneyland last week. And now, Jackson has spoken out on their friendship — and he's saying a whole lot of nothing. When asked about speculation about his and Olympios' relationship, he said:

"Here's the thing. In the media — the media wanted black versus white. ... But in reality, both of us were put against each other."

OK, but are y'all together or nah?

"I'm not trying to date or do anything," he continued. "The only person I'm dating is my career."

I suppose we'll just have to wait and see. Or get bored, forget about it and only be reminded when they announce their relationship on the cover of People, or something.

Chris Evans' guide to a Trump tweet

President Donald Trump has dealt with quite a few tragedies during his short time in the White House so far, but not everyone has been impressed by his responses to these crises—especially Chris Evans.

After calling the commander-in-chief a "reckless moron" and live-tweeting his Charlottesville press conference in the summer, the "Captain America" once again took to Twitter to criticize Trump over the weekend. This time around, Evans lambasted the president for his feud with San Juan Mayor Carmen Yulín Cruz Soto in the wake of the Hurricane Maria disaster in Puerto Rico.

Captain America isn't happy with the president's response to Puerto Rico.

Evans retweeted Trump's post about

Democrats influencing her to be "nasty" toward the president, along with a pretty perfect checklist for crafting a Trump tweet.

According to the Marvel movie actor, "A Trump Thread in a Time of Crisis" includes lots of insults and third person references.

Surprisingly, Trump has yet to engage Evans over Twitter despite the numerous callouts, including this perfect response to the president's thoughts on DACA.

Anthony Anderson

The "Black-ish" star on volunteering and what to expect from the fourth season of the hit series.

RACHAEL VAUGHAN CLEMMONS
@rachaelclemz
rachael.clemmons@metro.us

"Black-ish" is on its way back on Oct. 3 — and according to star Anthony Anderson, the hit ABC series will be as timely as ever. "You talk about the show being timely and topical," the 47-year-old says over the phone, "[but] sometimes we don't plan it. It's just [something] we wanted to do."

We chatted with the Los Angeles native — who has partnered with State Farm in an effort to encourage others to get out and volunteer to help better the community — about the series' "Hamilton"-inspired premiere, what to expect from the "Grown-ish" spin-off, and the significance of giving back.

Does giving back have a magnified significance to you as a black man? If we don't give back to our own community, who will? [For me] it started in the church with my brothers and my sister and my mom — going over to the church you have that elderly woman who lives by herself. You mow the lawn for her, you bring the mail in, you take her to the grocery store, you take her shopping and it just spreads from there.

Especially with recent disasters across the country, volunteering has the ability to bring people together. What's interesting is that President Jimmy Carter started Good Neighbor day. He wanted to bring attention to rebuilding our communities as a collective. You look at the times that we're in today: the political climate, the disasters that are going on around our country and around the world.

It's even more important today that we band together as a community and volunteer and help one another.

"Black-ish" is always so

BEGINNING OF THE END?

Even if the Patriots lose this Thursday at the Buccaneers (2-1), lose in three weeks at home to the revenge-filled Falcons (3-1), lose on Nov. 12 at Denver (3-1), and lose to the Raiders (2-2) on Nov. 19 in Mexico City (all of which is VERY possible) — the Pats will still be considered Super Bowl contenders at 4-6 going into Thanksgiving weekend. Bill Belichick and Tom Brady are that good, and have built up enough trust over the years for everyone to realize it's never over 'till it's over with the Pats dynasty.

Unlike in the aftermath of that brutal Monday night loss in Kansas City three years ago, however, this particular "sky is falling" period in New England feels real. Like, very real.

That old idea of "no one goes into Foxboro and beats the Patriots" has become a complete joke. Consider that the Pats only lost two games last season (Bills, Seahawks) and they've already lost two games this season (Chiefs, Panthers). Interestingly enough, all four of those games came at Gillette Stadium.

Now, there was a common cry among die-hard fans and even players after the first title period window of the Patriots (say, 2006-10) that the people who attended games at Gillette were of the wine and cheese variety. These people didn't know enough to make noise when the Pats were on defense, and many would often leave late in the third quarter to beat the Route 1 traffic. That sort of, kind of, went away when the Pats went through a 10-year Super Bowl title "drought" — but even during that time period Gillette didn't exactly sound like Arrowhead Stadium in Kansas City or CenturyLink Field in Seattle.

Could the fans in Foxboro be louder? Yes. Would a bonkers crowd have made a difference in the losses to the Chiefs and Panthers this year? Absolutely not.

The totality of the blame for this mediocre season so far lies with the Patriots' defense and the defense alone.

This was a unit that was supposed to have the best secondary in the NFL this season — with Stephon Gilmore, Malcolm Butler and Devin McCourty all owning Pro Bowl talent. But the stats and the eyeballs have shown quite the contrary. Instead, the Pats currently have the worst secondary in football, giving up a league worst 324 passing yards per game. Their linebacking corps is the worst in the league when it comes to pass defense (wouldn't it be nice to have Jamie Collins right about now?) and their pass-rush is non-existent (Pats are 26th in the NFL in sacks).

Tampa Bay QB Jameis Winston — who is basically Deshaun Watson on steroids and a healthier version of Cam Newton — is no doubt licking his chops when it comes to this Thursday's matchup with the Pats. There is absolutely no reason to expect Winston to struggle in this one.

Bent and broken

Perhaps we should have seen all this coming. The Pats — even while winning two of the last three Super Bowls — haven't had a truly elite defense since the early 2000s. It was in 2009 that Belichick famously went for it on 4th and 2 from his own 28 late in a game against the Colts because he didn't trust his defense, and that ushered in the era of "bend but don't break" in New England.

Truth be told, that method worked very well. The Pats averaged a league-best 15.6 points allowed per game last season and in their Super Bowl winning season of 2014 they were eighth in the NFL in points allowed per game (19.6).

But if Patriots fans are being honest with themselves, they know full well that they haven't had a take-no-prisoners defense like the current Broncos have or the early 2010s Seahawks had or the late 2000s Ravens had in quite some time.

Even look at last season's playoff run. The second half of the Super Bowl masked what was a downright ugly first half for the Pats defense in the biggest game of the year. Matt Ryan had his way with that defense and Devonta Freeman ran wild. Even in the first half of a divisional round win over the Texans, the Pats defense made Brock Osweiler look decent.

In other words, this has absolutely become a trend.

It would be sad if Tom Brady's career fizzles out with losses because of his own team's defensive ineptitude rather than an opposing NFL defense finally figuring him out, but right now — that's the way it's certainly headed.
